Governor's special election will cost state $70 million

Schwarzenegger's anti-labor initiatives follow his business agenda

Governor Schwarzenegger claimed he would "terminate" politics as usual in Sacramento. In reality, his proposals for ballot initiatives that require a special election this fall are nothing more than a blueprint for California based on the Bush plan for America.

The estimated cost to taxpayers for holding a special election in November is about $70 million. This price tag does not include the hundreds of millions raised by the governor and his opponents to buy advertising on both sides of each issue.

The governor had originally proposed four initiatives, and has already withdrawn one due to political fire. This initiative would have dismantled the public pension system, offering only 401K style plans run by private, for-profit investment companies. It wouldn't have helped balance the budget and would have cost the state more money.

If this sounds familiar, it should—it is the same idea as the Bush plan to privatize Social Security.

The governor is also following Bush's lead by attempting to silence the voice of union members, targeting public sector workers first, through a so-called "union dues check-off" initiative.

This rehash of Prop 226, which failed to pass in 1998, would make public sector unions helpless to protect themselves against these attacks. Governor Schwarzenegger conveniently claims it is not "his" initiative, though it is supported by his closest allies.

The governor also wants an initiative to re-draw the state's legislative districts. This same maneuver, carried out in Texas last year, led to five members of Congress losing their seats to Republicans who are more agreeable to big business. These lines are drawn every ten years after the census. They should not be manipulated midstream just so the governor can control the legislature.

Don't sign the petitions

Schwarzenegger and his business allies are willing to pay millions to put these initiatives on the ballot. They will be paying signature collectors as much as $5 a pop received. Those signature collectors are not standing at shopping centers across the state because they care about the issues; they're doing it because it's a decent-paying job.

Signing these petitions is not about democracy—it's about giving big business what it wants to the detriment of working people.

Teamsters take lead to improve pay and conditions

City and port look for ways to help Oakland port drivers

Members of the Oakland City Council and the Oakland Port Commission heard powerful testimony April 25 from port drivers and their supporters on the difficulties of making a living in the state's second largest port complex, and promised to take concrete steps to improve their conditions.

The public hearing by the City-Port Liaison Committee, which brings port and council members together to consider common issues, heard from drivers, community supporters, Teamsters and other unions, as well as port staff and environmentalists. They concluded that while the problems faced by drivers are outside the control of local authorities, concrete steps can be taken locally to take some of the edge off.

The hearing also provided a means to inform the community about the drivers' issues and the efforts by the Teamsters to pass legislation which would help them achieve some justice. The overall tone of the meeting was set by Bill Patterson, a longtime activist representing the Maritime Coalition, a group of community leaders who are concerned about generating economic benefits from the Port. "All of the stakeholders must be at the table. While the true sources of problems we face are international in scope, local solutions should be explored. We cannot simply sit here and say, it's not our problem or our fault. This is about taking some initiative as we work in all available venues to correct this problem."

The most dramatic testimony was provided by drivers Abel Zerfiel and

The most dramatic testimony was provided by drivers Abel Zerfiel and Jorge Rueda, leaders of the Bay Area Port Drivers Association. Both of them testified to the long days, long hours, delays and the low take-home pay involved in driving a truck.

Community leader Bill Randolph talks with port drivers in preparation for the Oakland City-Port hearing.

"It is the worst of both worlds," said Zerfiel, who has been driving for 15 years. "We have the all the responsibilities of a small businessman, and yet none of the rights of self determination that small business people have. We are at the mercy of the big brokers and terminal operators.

"The heart of our problem is that we are paid by the load, while those around us are paid by the hour. If we do not make two loads a day, we do not survive very long. With three loads a day perhaps we'll clear a little profit. But no one has the incentive to make this possible. The whole system operates to slow us down."

"Our working lives consist of endless waiting in line and endless delays," said Rueda. "The system is a drag on the productivity of the entire port of Oakland, and it ultimately is a threat to everyone who depends on the economic activity at the Port. The system itself is at fault here."

The Teamster plan for politics

The key to what we want to accomplish is member participation....

As the IBT Organizing

Department often calls it,

we need "a mighty

army."

"Teamster planning" as an oxymoron, but hey, the tough times ahead require a new way of taking care of business.

That's what we've been attempting over the last few months – to build an effective Teamster political action plan that can mobilize officers, officials, staff and rank and file members to, in the short term, beat back Arnold Schwarzenegger and the conservative right's attack on workers' pensions, on teachers and on unions in general.

In the long term we have to build a plan that can help change the agenda in California and beyond from today's increasingly 'me, me, me,' to one that's more 'us, us, us'—one that's more worker and people friendly.

Member to Member

The key to what we want to accomplish is member participation. The Plan envisions rank and file political coordinators at every worksite in California. These members will register their coworkers to vote, keep them informed and updated with flyers and issue papers, encourage DRIVE membership and line up precinct walkers and phone bankers around election day. As the IBT Organizing Department often calls it, "a mighty army."

Structure

The worksite coordinators will get direction and information from the local union political coordinators. While every worksite has a coordinator, every local in the state also has a coordinator. He/she will be there to

Yes, I know many might think of identify and assist those at the worksites. Local union coordinators will get their direction and information from the Joint Council political coordinators.

Bob Blanchet from Local 287 will work with JC7 locals. Jim Tobin from Local 150 will handle Joint Council 38 and Ed Rendon will take care of Joint Council 42. The Joint Council coordinators have an additional responsibility to hold locals accountable for what they don't do.

This year we're trying something different. Locals will be part of a team. In JC7, it breaks down as follows: Locals 15, 70, 78, 853 are the Raiders; Locals 85, 278, 350, 665, 856 are the 49ers, and South Bay Locals 287, 890 and 912 are the Saber Cats. Locals 315, 490 and 624 have yet to choose a name.

Friendly competition, but also more manageable. Each team will have a captain—principal officers from one of the locals, and a quarterback—a rank and file member who will work the DRIVE program and help coordinate voter registration for the team.

With the support of our members the plan will work.

We can register several thousand more members. We can increase DRIVE participation and we can empower and encourage members so they get involved at the political grassroots.

And, you know what? If we do this right, we might surprise not only ourselves but a lot of others too.

Western region Teamsters set strategies

Meeting in San Diego March 16-17, leaders of Teamster locals in the western states laid plans to work together to protect wages and benefits in upcoming negotiations.

Contracts with all major grocery chains, including Safeway and Albertson's, expire in 2006.

"These negotiations will be the toughest and the most important in years," said Chuck Mack, President of Joint Council 7. "We need to start preparing right now, and the first thing we need to do is develop a unified strategy."

Jim Santangelo, President of Southern California's Joint Council 42, pledged to send Southern California Teamster leaders to participate in Northern California negotiations and invited Northern California Teamsters to do the same down south.

"We've got a lot to deal with," said Carlos Borba, President of Local 490, whose members work at the Albertson's warehouse in Vacaville. Our members are concerned about preserving their health care benefits. They're concerned about their work opportunity and jurisdiction. We need to protect our pension benefits."

The group agreed to meet regularly to formalize a strategy for a joint approach to bargaining.

Other highlights included remarks by International President Jim Hoffa and a report by the International organizing staff on the success of strategic organizing campaigns throughout the country.

Joint Council 7 President Chuck Mack delivered a presentation about the new DRIVE "cluster" program to increase membership in the Teamsters Political Action Fund program. "We've got all locals in a particular area pooling their resources to reach out to members who may live in each other's jurisdiction. Judging by the early results," Mack said, "we can increase our DRIVE fund in Northern California by as much as $3 million."

Port Drivers seek relief

Both agreed that a typical driver can gross as much as $100,000 a year, but is likely to take home $25-30,000.

"We ask for only one thing. Give us the right to organize ourselves and bargain with our employers for a contract. We all know that the Sherman Act should not be used to punish small operators like ourselves."

Drivers are currently forbidden to organize for collective bargaining process under the U.S. Sherman Anti-Trust Act, which bars "combinations in restraint of trade."

Seeking legislative relief

The port and city council members heard also from Teamster legislative representative Barry Broad, who outlined current state legislation and asked for local support. These bills include:

· Assembly Bill 848 (Dunn) which

- would exempt Port Driver owneroperator drivers from the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and permit them to organize for purposes of collective bargaining; and
- Senate Bill 762 (Lowenthal), an environmental bill which set up a permit system to grant trucking companies authority based on criteria that would include priority for cleaner burning vehicles.

On April 5, Joint Council 7 President Chuck Mack led a delegation of truckers and neighborhood environmental activists to Sacramento to testify before the Senate Transportation Committee on behalf of the Lowenthal Bill. The same group returned to Sacramento on April 27 in support of the Dunn bill, to grant drivers bargaining rights. Both bills cleared their committees.

AROUND SACRAMENTO

Despite threatened election, Teamsters pursue good legislation

By BARRY BROAD, Teamsters Public Affairs Committee

"The governor is creating more problems than he is solving and the electorate would prefer their leader to work in a bipartisan manner rather than pursue right-wing

politics."

It is hard to remember a time when California politics seemed to be spinning so quickly out of control. Governor Schwarzenegger declared that the "time for compromise" has now "passed," barely four months into the 2005 legislative session.

The governor supports a special election in the fall that will cost an estimated $70 million. He is working to qualify a series of ballot initiatives to:

- eliminate traditional pension plans for public employees,
- eliminate seniority rights for public school employees,
- impose deep automatic budget cuts in education, health care, transportation and other vital services,
- · create a new "paycheck deception" initiative for public employees.

While he abruptly announced that he was dropping the pension measure, he plans to go on with the others.

Against a backdrop of increasingly noisy demonstrations at each of his fundraisers, the governor's popularity is dropping like a rock. In just two months, his approval rating plummeted from nearly 70% to under 50%.

Meanwhile, the governor's verbal assault on organized labor continues. Every chance he gets, the governor denounces labor unions as "special interests," while raising huge amounts of money from corporations.

In Schwarzenegger's view, anyone who doesn't contribute to his campaign or who disagrees with him is a "special interest" or a "girlie man." Lately, he has accused Democrats of being "drug addicts."

It appears that the governor is creating more problems than he is solving and the electorate would prefer their leader to work in a bipartisan manner rather than pursue right-wing ice the ports. It would be similar to the politics.

Teamster-sponsored bills

In the midst of all this hype, the Teamsters are sponsoring four bills this year, all aimed at improving conditions for truck drivers and our members who work in transportation.

We have two bills designed to aggressively change the working conditions for truck drivers that service California's ports.

These drivers, many of whom are immigrants, are truly at the bottom of the economic food chain. Many are characterized as independent owner-operators. Yet they work for the same company for years and lease their truck from the motor carrier, rather than actually owning their own rig. They are paid a pittance for each load they take in and out of the ports. They have no power to negotiate their "per load" rate and are limited in the amount of loads they can haul per day because of the incredible congestion in our major

SB 848 by Senator Joe Dunn (D-Orange County), would permit these drivers to join a union and negotiate their rates collectively. The bill would be the first of its kind in the country to affect the transportation industry.

SB 762 by Assembly Member Alan Lowenthal (D-Long Beach), would create two port trucking commissions which would be charged with granting trucking companies the right to servtaxi medallion system that operates at many airports.

The other trucking-related bill that we are sponsoring is AB 1048 by Assembly Member Fran Pavley (D-Woodland Hills). The measure would close several loopholes in a trucking safety law that we sponsored several years ago.

Our final sponsored bill is in recognition of our two newly affiliated rail unions. AB 962, by Assembly Speaker Fabian Nunez, would enact various rail safety rules designed to protect our members and the public.

The Good . . .

Even though the Administration may be openly hostile to organized labor, unions are moving forward with legislation to protect working families. Here are just a few of those bills:

AB 89 by Assembly Member Jerome Horton (D-Inglewood), would require the disclosure and annual reporting of employer names whose workers receive public assistance for health coverage.

AB 48 by Assembly Member Sally Lieber (D-Palo Alto), would increase our minimum wage from $6.75 to $7.75 over two years, and then index it to the cost of living. California currently pays the lowest minimum wage on the West Coast.

AB 524 by Assembly Member Wilma Chan (D-Oakland), would require state contractors to report back to the state (1) the number of workers they hire outside the U.S. and (2) information about any subcontracted work that is performed.

AB 875 by Assembly Member Paul Koretz (D-West Hollywood), would require the Labor Agency and Franchise Tax Boards to develop protocols where certain labor law violations would trigger a tax audit of the employer.

AB 391, also by Assembly Member Koretz, would address the situation that arose in last year's grocery strike when the locked out workers were denied unemployment insurance benefits. This bill would declare that locked out workers are entitled to unemployment benefits.

The Bad . . .

Not surprisingly, there have been many bills introduced to undo the gains that organized labor has achieved over the years. Here are some of those:

ACAX1 1 by Assembly Member Keith Richman (R-L.A.), would prohibit public employers from providing defined benefit retirement plans and mandates the use of risky defined contribution plans, like 401k plans.

Several bills proposed aim at weakening the eight-hour day.

The Ugly . . . Really Ugly

Although there's lots of competition, we have to award Assembly Member Lynn Daucher (R-Fullerton), with the "Scrooge Award" for most mean-spirited bill of the year. AB 227 would permanently take away temporary disability and medical benefits from injured workers who leave the state for more than two weeks at a time without the employer's permission.

Free Hazardous Materials Training

New standards for transporting hazardous materials are coming into effect. To enable Teamsters to comply, we offer free training:

Local 890 is victorious at Newstar Fresh Foods

In a double victory, Local 890 negotiated a contract for warehouse workers at the NewStar Fresh Foods plant in Yuma, Arizona, and organized more than 100 production workers at the same facility.

By a vote of 38-1, warehouse workers ratified their first contract with the bagged-salad producer in late February. This contract raises hourly wage rates by up to 25% and guarantees holiday pay, job security and medical benefits for approximately 60 workers.

Expiring in 2008, the contract is part of a master agreement that also covers NewStar employees at the company's Salinas facility. The workers produce bagged salad in Salinas eight months. Production shifts to Yuma during the winter months.

"This was a great agreement for the Yuma employees," said Local 890 President and International Trustee Frank Gallegos. "The workers deserve all of the representation and the rights that a union contract offers."

In a separate vote, 105 production department workers at the Yuma facility voted 55-31 to join Local 890. With this victory, Local 890 now represents production, warehouse and skilled-trades workers at NewStar Fresh Food's plants in Yuma and Salinas.

"The production workers want the same benefits that their counterparts in Salinas receive," said Local 890 Business Agent Fritz Conle. "They want to be recalled when production comes back here next year. Plus, they want better wages, benefits and a seniority scale."

The campaigns were waged in tandem. "The warehouse workers approved their contract about three weeks before the production workers' vote," Conle said. "That was a big boost for them. They saw the benefits of being a Teamster."

Local 287 gives Greif grief and gets a contract

Local 287 played hardball in its negotiations with Greif, a Morgan Hill-based produce barrel manufacturer, and it paid off in April. "We were holding off for decent health care," says Business Agent Dave Werlin, "and we finally got it."

Approximately 30 employees work at Greif in the off-season; that number doubles in the high season. Their contract expired in December and the employer was demanding that the new contract dump the Teamster health insurance for an inferior company plan. "This would have cost the members $169 per month for a much worse plan," says Werlin. "Management's position was that whether we struck or not, we'd end up with the company plan. We disagreed."

The contract was extended several times and the talks continued. On March 14, the members voted to strike if they couldn't keep their Teamster health plan.

"We contacted other Teamster locals that represent Grief workers. This includes Local 948 in Modesto, Local 439 in Stockton and locals in Texas, Michigan and New Jersey," says Werlin. "We asked for their support and informed them that in case of a strike, we might send pickets to their facilities. They then called the company to warn them of the possibility of a job action at all of the Greif facilities."

Werlin is pleased to report that the company came around. "They backed down. Our members ratified a new two-year contract by a 90% margin that includes the current Teamster benefits in tact. That's what union solidarity brings you."

Local 912 secures solid contract for tofu workers

On January 3, workers represented by Local 912 unanimously ratified their first contract with Watsonville-based Wildwood Harvest Foods. The two-year contract covers 65 tofu production workers.

The contract, which took effect January 7, provides 4.5% wage increases per year, improved health benefits, and a reinstated dental plan.

"Health care was a big issue for the workers," said Brad Sebring, Secretary-Treasurer of Local 912. "They had lost their dental plan and were making high co-payments. We were able to get the plan back and reduce the co-pays."

The new agreement also includes new seniority language, which was another big concern for the workers. "Before the new agreement, they were moved around wherever the company wanted to put them," Sebring said. "Now they have some stability."

The employees at Wildwood voted to join Local 912 in April, 2004. "We had to work from the ground level to secure the contract," Sebring said. "It was a new process, but we did it. And the workers are pleased."

Local 78 still fighting Durham

Since June of 2001, when the employees of Durham Transportation in Hayward and Livermore first voted to have Local 78 represent them, the company has fought the union tooth and nail.

"This company is trying to write the book on how to stop its employees from achieving the union representation they clearly want," says Organizer Skip Joaquin. "We're in the middle of fighting our second de-cert campaign right now."

The union won the original election by a 64% margin and started bargaining for a first contract. "They stalled on contract language for an entire year, and didn't even get into economics," Joaquin explains. "Business Agent Ron Paredes and I have participated in dozens of meetings with this employer, but we can't push them to make any real progress. They've put out two bad contracts that the members rejected unanimously. They've stayed right on the borderline as far as bargaining in good faith."

In January, 2004 the company launched its first decertification campaign, which the union won by 65%, and they've just launched a new de-cert campaign. "I don't know what it'll take for Durham to understand that their employees want a union. We expect to win again, and that will mark the third time this group has voted Union Yes."

The 30 employees at the two locations are bus drivers; their passengers are all special education students who have a range of special needs. "These drivers are close to their students. They don't want to abandon the kids, so they won't strike," adds Joaquin.

Despite the union's political efforts, which included drumming up opposition from local politicians, unions and Central Labor Councils, Durham recently won its bid for a new contract with the South County Transportation Group, a Pleasanton-based consortium which covers eight school districts. "They went with the lowest bidder. The other bidders all made room in their bid proposals for a union contract that allowed pay raises and benefits. Clearly, Durham could keep their bid low because they didn't include decent wages and benefits for the drivers."

Joaquin says that the same thing happened in Seattle and St. Louis, but both cities quickly dropped the Durham contract due to the company's anti-union policies. Eventually, unionized companies picked up the work.

Scale House workers weigh in for Local 315

The seven employees who weigh in the refuge and collect the dumping fees at the Richmond landfill's Scale House became union members through voluntary recognition in March.

"This is no longer a family-run operation," says Local 315 Secretary-Treasurer Dale Robbins. "These employees want protections and more security, so they came to the union. We already represent all of Republic Services' solid waste, garbage collection and recycling workers in Contra Costa County. Because this was the last unit at the Richmond landfill that wasn't union, the company didn't put up a fight."

Robbins said that negotiations are well under way, and that they should have a contract soon.

Retirees at work for Teamsters

These retired Teamster officers spend time and effort helping Teamster causes, including planning the TAP golf tournament, just held on April 20, and the All Charities Teamsters tournament slated for August 1. UNION SECURITY NOTICE

THIS NOTICE IS PRINTED TO MAKE SURE YOU UNDERSTAND YOUR FINANCIAL OBLIGATION TO THE LOCAL UNION THAT REPRESENTS YOU IN COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

If your job is covered by a Union security clause in your collective bargaining agreement, the law provides three different methods for you to comply with its obligations:

ESCAMILLA, John, Local 315

- 1. You may become a full member of the Union by paying the initiation fee and monthly dues required pursuant to the Local's Bylaws.
- 2. You can pay the initiation fee and monthly dues without becoming a member
- 3. You can become a "service fee payer," that is, you can pay the percentage of the initiation fee and monthly dues that represents your pro rata share of the collective bargaining expenditures of the Union.

The amount of the service fee is calculated each year by determining the percentage that the Union's collective bargaining expenditures bears to its total expenditures, and applying that percentage to the regular initiation fee and monthly dues. You can obtain this dollar amount upon request to the Local. Under the law, you have the right to challenge the correctness of the Local's calculation of the service fee payment. Procedures for doing this will be explained to you by your Local if you decide to satisfy your Union security obligation by paying a service fee.

A service fee payer is not a member of the Union, and is not entitled to participate in Union affairs. Page 8 May/June/July 2005

YOUR LEGAL RIGHTS

Accessing Your Personnel File

The California Labor Code gives employees the right to inspect their personnel file. The "personnel file" covered by this law is defined to mean any records kept by your employer that relate to your performance or to any grievance concerning you. All of these records constitute your personnel "file," even if the records are kept in more than one place.

Records exempted from this law are (1) records relating to the investigation of a possible criminal offense; (2) letters of reference; and (3) ratings, reports, or records that were obtained prior to the your employment, prepared by identifiable examination committee members, or obtained in connection with a promotional examination.

You have a right to inspect, not to copy, your personnel file, and your employer must allow you access to your personnel file "at reasonable intervals and at reasonable times."

To comply with your right to inspect your personnel file, your employer must do one of the following: (1) Keep a copy of each of your personnel records at the place where you report to work; (2) make your personnel records available at the place where you report to work within a reasonable period of time following your request; or (3) allow you to inspect the personnel records at the location where your employer stores the personnel records, with no loss of compensation to you.

Although the law does not explicitly state that former employees retain the right to inspect their personnel files, the Labor Commissioner interprets the law to cover ex-employees and a bill is pending in the Legislature (AB 1626) to amend the law to clarify its application to former employees.

A separate provision of the Labor Code gives you the right to receive, upon request, a copy of any personnel record you have signed. Otherwise, you have no right to copy any of the documents in your personnel file.

Your union, on the other hand, does have the right to obtain copies of employer records that are necessary to the union's representation of its members. If you have filed a grievance, or are considering filing a grievance, it is best to work with your union before you demand access to your personnel file.

Your union will be able to determine the best strategy for obtaining all of the documents, including when appropriate documents from your personnel file, that will best assist the union in evaluating and pursuing a grievance.

NEWS FROM TAP

Some DOT drug and alcohol tests reported to

The State of California has enacted legislation that exceeds the reporting requirements of the Department of Transportation (DOT) regulation regarding positive drug and alcohol tests.

All interstate and intrastate motor carriers and commercial drivers are required to comply with the alcohol and drug program requirements of 49 CFR, Part 382. That is the federal law which, among other things, requires motor carriers to make alcohol and drug records available for inspection and allows the California Highway Patrol (CHP) to use return-to-duty and follow-up test results to monitor drivers who are motor carriers.

In addition to the Federal requirements, California law goes farther, requiring any drug or alcohol testing consortium, as defined in §382.107, to mail a copy of all drug and alcohol test result summaries to the CHP within three days of the test. This applies to any commercial driver employed by a motor carrier operating terminals in California. These requirements do not apply to firefighters operating any firefighting equipment.

Whether CHP has the right to forward the information to the Department of Motor Vehicles is unclear. TAP is aware of at least one case where a commercial driver's positive random test was reported to DMV. It remains unclear how that information was transmitted. Nonetheless, the driver was not permitted to return to duty until he demonstrated to DMV that he had complied with a substance abuse professionals' recommendation for alcohol/drug treatment/education.

Under DOT regulations, a consortium is defined as, ". . . a service agent that provides or coordinates one or more drug and/or alcohol testing services to DOT-regulated employers. Consortium/Third Party Administrators (C/TPAs) provide or coordinate the provision of a number of such services and perform administrative tasks concerning the operation of the employers' drug and alcohol testing programs. This term includes, but is not limited to, groups of employers who join together to administer, as a single entity, the DOT drug and alcohol testing programs of its members (e.g., having a combined random testing pool). C/TPAs are not "employers" for purposes of this part."

It is important for any business agent who represents Teamsters who are commercial drivers to know whether the employer is using a C/TPA to provide or coordinate any DOT required employer duties.

Traffic Vehicle Code changes impact members with commercial drivers' licenses

California has made significant changes to the Vehicle Code that affect all of our members who are required to have a Commercial License. These changes generally take effect in September 2005.

Among many other changes, the new law applies moving violations in a non-commercial vehicle against your commercial license.

The impact of the changes will be immediate and severe, making it harder to keep a commercial license and reducing the number of drivers with a valid commercial license.

Our members need to understand the changes and need to know what is coming. Please review the following summary of the law.

Why, with a Democratic majority in the State As - ernment is regulating what states do by making sembly and Senate, are we saddled with this kind of legislation? As is so often the case, the federal gov-

Summary of changes to the California Vehicle Code

Under current law, "serious traffic violations" count against your commercial license only if you committed the violation while driving a commercial vehicle. Under the new law, "serious traffic violations" committed at work OR during non-work hours in a non-commercial vehicle will count against your commercial driver's license.

What's a "serious violation"?

- Speeding (15 miles or more above the posted limit)
- Erratic lane changes
- Following too close
- Reckless driving
- Any violation in connection with a fatal accident
- Any similar violation...involving safe operation of motor vehicle

What are the penalties for a "serious violation"?

A 60-day prohibition from operating a commercial vehicle for two serious violations in a three-year period and a 120-day prohibition from operating a commercial vehicle for three violations in a three-year period which cause your non-commercial driver's license to be revoked, cancelled or suspended.

- Under the new law, a first time DUI in your personal car, truck or motorcycle equals a one year suspension of your commercial license. A second DUI within ten years in any vehicle and you are barred for life from driving a commercial vehicle.
- First time refusal to submit to a blood or breathalyzer test (while driving a commercial or personal vehicle) equals a one year suspension of your commercial license. Assecond refusal within ten years and you are barred for life from driving a commercial vehicle.
- Under the new law, attending traffic school will NOT clear a violation from your record.
- The new law eliminates restricted commercial licenses for commercial drivers.

adoption of these restrictions necessary in order to receive federal transportation funding.

The only thing likely to influence the White House and Congress is that these changes result in a trucking crisis by taking large numbers of Commercial Vehicle license holders off the road.

The Teamsters are seeking a delay of the regulation, but that appears to be a long shot at this point. We will advise members of any change.
